CHAPTER XVIII

FRATRES LUCIS

I HAVE met with no first-hand memorials of the Golden and Rosy Cross in the second half of the eighteenth century, excepting the Rituals which arose out of the Reformation of or about 1777.¹ We do not know certainly whether that reform came about in the course of a natural development, as for example in exchanging the astral workings for those of alchemical experiment, or whether it was the result of disruption. It was a stormy period, and the history of Secret Societies—Masonic or otherwise—indicates that titles of adeptship may have had many claims on the good pleasure of Divine favour and recognition but they had few upon the peace of God. I conclude that the Golden and Rosy Cross underwent a revolution which it characterised by a different name. There is another point of uncertainty. We have no means of determining whether the circle about which we have learned so much owing to the survival of its Rituals was the only one of its kind in Germany and elsewhere on the Continent of that period. There may have been several branches admitting no allegiance to one another, but following their own path. In any case the Order survived, and there came a time when two of its important members—who were not, however, Supreme Superiors within the initiated circle—were the chief advisers of Frederick William II, with their hands on the helm of the Prussian ship of state. I refer to Johann Rudolf Bischoffswerder and Johann Christoph Wöllner.¹ The King himself had been received within the ranks, and for a period of eleven years there was the strange spectacle of a Rosicrucian triad ruling over the destinies of an European kingdom. But this period began in 1786 and the initiation of Bischoffswerder must have taken place—under whatever Obedience of the Order—prior to 1773; that of Wöllner is altogether uncertain; it may have been subsequent to the King's reception, which is referable to circa 1780. I do not propose to pursue this subject because it offers nothing to my purpose and information concerning it is available in many quarters.² We are told that the King was a tool

¹ My reference is to official documents, actual or assumed. An important memorial belonging to the period itself, although at the last end, is H. C. Albrecht's GEHEIMZ GESCHICHTE EINES ROSENKREUZERS, from their own documents, published at Hamburg in 1792. It is concerned entirely with the post 1777 period and in particular with (1) the revelations of a certain Cedrinus; (2) the history of Freemasonry; (3) the Order of the Temple; (4) the Convention of Wilhelmsbad; (5) a Rosicrucian romance called DON SYLVIO; (6) an ADDRESS to the Rosicrucians of the Old System, belonging to the year 1781 and connected with an attempt by Frazinus to establish or revive the Rosy Cross in Vienna, the nature of which experiment was exposed by Cedrinus; (7) the activities of Theoretical Brethren; and (8) the PHYSICA MYSTICA and PHYSICA SACRA SANCTISSIMA of Johann Gottfried Jugel.

The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross

¹ Bischoffswerder was a native of Saxony, and was born on Nov. 15, 1741. He had been in the service of the Duke of Courland prior to that of the King, and before he became a Rosicrucian he belonged to the Strict Observance and many of the Secret Rites. He died in 1803. Wöllner was born at Dobritz in 1732 and belonged to the Lutheran ministry. He entered the service of the Prussian King in 1786 as Privy Councillor of Finance. He died on September 11, 1800.

² Mr. Gilbert Stanhope's MYSTIC ON THE PRUSSIAN THRONE, 1912, gives an excellent general account, with a long list of authorities; but it should be understood that the writer neither has nor claims acquaintance with Rosicrucian history, outside the place and period with which he is concerned. As regards these the following summary particulars will clear up the chief issues, and those who are concerned further may be referred to Mr. Stanhope's work. (1) Bischoffswerder had served during the Seven Years' War and again in the Bavarian campaign, at the end of which he was attached to the suite of Frederick William, then Prince of Prussia. (2) He had attained already a high position in the Rosicrucian Fraternity and was in the hands of his brother-adepts and that Wöllner in particular must be called his evil genius. In both cases, however, they were working for their own ends and not for those of the Order. This point seems perfectly clear from all that we know of their history. I set aside, of course, the bare possibility that the King's treasury might at need have furnished money to the heads of the Rosy Cross through the influence of his two advisors, but no suggestion of the a firm believer in the healing power of an elixir known to the Order. (3) It was used in an illness which befell the Prince, and his recovery was attributed to its virtues. (4) Bischoffswerder thereupon induced him to join the Order, concerning which it is said that the real leaders worked in secrecy, exacting implicit obedience: in a word, they were Unknown Superiors. (5) Delighted as they were—this is of course speculation—at the advent of a royal recruit, they imposed on him a year's probation—as it is said, "to impress him more deeply with the sanctity and seriousness of their authority." (6) On their own part, as stated at an Order-Convocation and mentioned in the text above, they looked upon his advent from the standpoint of its possible spiritual profit, in view of his exalted position. (7) Bischoffswerder is regarded as sincere, at least at that time; but Wöllner, the son of a pastor, had belonged to the rationalistic party which flourished under Frederick the Great, and is thought to have entered the Order for the furtherance of his own schemes. (8) When Frederick William ascended the throne in 1736 he desired a return to the "orthodox religion," and Wöllner co-operated. (9) The number of Rosicrucians and mystics multiplied about the new King, and their influence was resented by many of the German princes, including Duke Frederick of Brunswick and Prince Eugène of Württemberg. (10) Such was the entourage of Frederick William II, so far as occult circles were concerned; but if the Rosy Cross in Prussia does not shine in any favourable light, there is nothing to shew that its representatives at the German Court were doing anything but play for their own hands. Mr. Stanhope says that the reactionary tendency of Austria made it sympathetic to Bischoffswerder, who regarded it as "a bulwark of monarchical and ecclesiastical authority against the approaching tide of liberalism in religion and politics." But this at least exhibits a Rosicrucian on the less intolerable of two sides when neither made for goodness. Moreover, the case against Wöllner may call for amendment. It is possible for a rationalist to be sincere when he turns to things represented by the religious side of the Rosy Cross. When he said in a Circle of the Order: "O my Brethren, the time is not far off when we may hope that the long-expected Wise Ones will reach us and bring us into communion with High and Invisible Beings"—it is scarcely fair to suggest that this was a mere pose. In any case the statement is valuable for my own purpose, as it shews that he was addressing a Lodge of Expectation, a Lodge of Quest, not one of attainment.

The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross

kind has been made from any direction. On the contrary, it would seem that the advantage of a royal patron and member was regarded in another light, for—at the value of such records—it is in evidence that the Master of a House or Temple at Hamburg, speaking in the name of the Highest Superiors, welcomed in absentia a Brother, then newly joined, under the name of Ormesus Magnus, as one who might be able to advance the Kingdom of Christ and the spread of the Order—presumably as a herald of His reign to come. Now Ormesus Magnus was the mystic name of Frederick William II as a Brother of the Rosy Cross.¹

Meanwhile the Reformation of 1777 had by no means eliminated undesirables or malcontents.² The impostor

² Though Findel knew little of the Rosicrucian subject, and in view of his Masonic hypotheses found little reason for knowing, he has drawn facts belonging to the period under review from various quarters and aids in the extension of our knowledge. (1) We hear of Dr. Schluss of Löwenfeld, Sulzbach, Bavaria, called Phocon in the Order, and Dr. Doppelmayr of Hof as "stars of the first magnitude" in what is denominated "the new Order"—otherwise in "the latter half of the eighteenth century." (2) As regards Schrepfer, who was a native of Nürnberg, it is said that he was the first who became a public apostle of the "Golden Rosicrucian Order," but this was before the Reformation—an event with which Findel seems unacquainted—and before it is possible to speak, even incorrectly, of a new Order. (3) Schrepfer shot himself on October 8, 1774, at the age of thirty-five. (4) He is said to have confessed previously that he was an emissary of the Jesuits, Findel having a mania in this direction, and almost anything served as evidence. (5) There is a story of Schröder—but I know not which is intended of the two Masonic celebrities who bore the name—and according to this he became acquainted with the Rosicrucians and "their first three Degrees" through an unknown alchemist. (6) He is said to have propagated the Order zealously till he lost the address of the person with whom he was directed to communicate. (7) This is on the authority of Lenning, and if the story is not a myth, the Schröder in question can hardly be he whom we shall meet with in the next chapter. (8) The activities of the

Schrepfer is an example of the first class; his pretended evocations made him the comet of a season and there must be some ground on which he called himself a Rosicrucian, for he seems to have been acknowledged by Bischoffswerder, who ought to have known a fellow-initiate. The malcontents also were in evidence, and this fact led to the establishment of other Rites and Orders by what may be called a process of segregation. They were made in the likeness of their original and advanced corresponding claims, e.g., to hold the key of Masonic Symbolism, possessing therefore all its secrets, or to represent the true and original Order of the Rosy Cross. We have seen that there were similar pretensions in France, but they owed nothing to each other and in all probability knew nothing of each other's existence. Three years after the Reformation, or Brotherhood caused the Order to take root in Lower Germany—especially Hamburg; it appeared in Silesia circa 1773, at Berlin in 1777, and soon after at Potsdam, which became its headquarters. (9) The members claimed direct derivation from the old establishment, and the inheritance of all its secrets, including the only solution of Masonic symbols. (10) About 1782 it is stated that Wöllner placed himself at the head of the "new Order," using three different names in the three different Degrees: this is exceedingly doubtful and Findel has admitted previously that the Degrees were nine. (11) According to certain MSS. in the possession of a Dr. Puhlmann, Wöllner corresponded with members at a distance and promoted greatly the extension of the Order. (12) But the BERLINER MONATSSCHRIFT exposed the propaganda and declared the whole thing an invention of the Jesuits. (13) In addition to attacks like this, the Order is affirmed to have carried within it the seeds of its own destruction—of what kind does not appear. (14) But when it became evident that the subjection of German Masonic Lodges to its yoke was beyond all expectation, a command went forth in 1787 from Southern Germany, enjoining the suspension of activities. (15) The event coincided with the time when "the credulous were anticipating the last and most important disclosures of that new and general plan which had been promised them." (16) In the North the Rosicrucians survived till the Prussian crown "changed hands," dying out in 1797-98. (17) I can see no reason for reliance upon these statements, which indicate a Rosicrucian headship in the South apart from that of the North, after placing Wöllner in charge of the whole Order. (18) As a fact, there seems no evidence for regarding Potsdam as the Rosicrucian headquarters or Wöllner as more than the chief of a single province.

The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross

circa 1780, Clavel says that a last schism in the Order produced the Initiated Brothers of Asia in Austria and Italy, but coincidentally therewith or proceeding immediately therefrom was an association of Fratres Lucis, otherwise Knights of Light, and this shall be the subject of investigation in the first place as considerable consequence has been attached to it in some modern occult circles. It has been named by a few continental historians of Freemasonry and has figured in a few lists, like those of Ragon, but there was no knowledge concerning it till the late Mrs. Isabel Cooper-Oakley took up the subject with that earnestness which always characterised her excursions in research. She had unfortunately no critical faculty and her sense of evidential values made her judgments worthless, but she was to be trusted implicitly about facts within her first-hand knowledge, and if she said that a document was in her hands, it was most certainly there. The point is of vital importance in the present connection.

Her study of the Fratres Lucis was based by Mrs. Oakley on one of many rare MSS. which were once in the library of the late Count Wilkoroki of Warsaw. In connection with the Rosy Cross in Russia, we shall see that this library was looted by Catherine II, but Mrs. Oakley found access to the collection, which is or was in the Imperial Library at Petrograd. It would seem also that she was permitted or found it possible to make extracts or a transcript in full, for she states that the documents belonging to the Fratres Lucis passed—apparently from herself—into the charge of a member of the Theosophical Society, “having been committed to his care for possible future use.” Many years have elapsed, however, and it does not appear that any result has followed. The original MS. claimed to comprise or embody the system of the Wise, Mighty and Reverend Order of the Knights or Brothers of Light, working five Degrees, the titles and content of which will appear immediately.¹ It was either divided formally or falls naturally for purposes of consideration into two main sections—otherwise the Laws of the Order and the Rituals worked thereby.

The second division of the manuscript contains the Ceremonies of the Order in what is presumably a rough outline or at least summary form. Preliminary to the whole appear the general conditions on which reception is possible and may become actual. They may be enumerated in the following order : (1) As in the Brotherhood of the Golden and Rosy Cross, Candidates must be Master Masons, raised in a regular Lodge ; (2) they must be free from physical defects, thus recalling the whole manhood required by the Craft itself, but the stipulation in the present case connotes something more than perfect limbs, this being insured already by the first condition : it is possible that there is a sex-implicit ; (3) they must not be initiates of any other Secret Order : alternatively they must resign therefrom, but it is unlikely that this undertaking was fulfilled by the Heads of the Fratres Lucis ; (4) they must be at least twenty-seven years of age or otherwise Master Masons of seven years' standing, thus intimating that minors were eligible for Masonic initiations at the place and time ; (5) they must not be oppressors of the poor ; (6) they must not be disputatious and quarrelsome, or must have repented sincerely, as the banal clause adds ; (7) they must submit to a probation of seven months, five of which would be ¹ Each Degree was called a Chapter and membership was graded on reducing multiples of the number 27. That of the First Degree was $27 \times 5 = 135$; of the Second $27 \times 4 = 108$; of the Third $27 \times 3 = 81$; of the Fourth $27 \times 2 = 54$; of the Fifth $27 \times 1 = 27$. It will be seen that according to so-called theosophical addition the number 9 ruled throughout, e.g., $27 = 2 + 7 = 9$, and so forward. According to Éliphas Lévi, the number 9 is that of initiation, while in Martinism it is of evil import ; but there is neither harmony nor analogy between the numerous competitive systems of occult numerology, except in the sense that they appear to be at once arbitrary and worthless.

The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross

occupied by the Superiors of the Order with inquiries into their Masonic conduct and reputation. The significance of these rules is to be sought in all that is omitted rather than anything that is expressed: it will be seen that they turn upon questions of moral fitness, Craft status and tolerably good citizenship. There is no word as to spiritual qualifications, religious aims or attainments, although—by the hypothesis of its Grades—the Rite was one of priesthood. Supposing that the Intelligence Department reported favourably the seven-months' child of its concern might then be born into the Order.

On the day fixed for his reception the Candidate was placed in a vestibule, where he was proved in the Three Craft Degrees, after which he was passed to the Chamber of Reception, otherwise the Chapter House, and there signed the following preliminary Pledge: "I, N. N., Master Mason, do promise in the Name of the one God, and by the duty of an honest man, that I will respect all the Mysteries and will observe all the Statutes which shall be imposed upon me by the Reverend, Wise and Worthy Chapter of Knights and Brothers of Light, Novices of the third year, and will hold them as a revelation of the ultimate forces of Nature, even if they seem difficult to follow and dealing with unheard of things." The execution of this undertaking entitled the Candidate to be acquainted with the Laws under which he must abide as a Novice. These may be summarised as follows: (1) He was required to abstain from any action which might militate against the Order itself, its Chapters or its Grades; (2) to exhibit dutiful submission—as pledged—in respect of all its Laws; (3) to prosecute its Mysteries throughout the days of his life, because they emanate from the True Light; (4) to ask nothing respecting their source or those by whom they have been delivered; (5) to maintain, so far as may be possible, the Three Degrees of Freemasonry, seeing that they are the Elementary School of the Sublime Order ;

(6) to guard and shield the Reverend, Mighty and Wise Order itself.

Having signified his adhesion to these undertakings in writing, the Novice was then escorted into the Chapter itself, where he was questioned as to when and by whom he had been made a Mason, and as to his age in the Master Grade. The Headship being familiar already with these points of his career, the testimony was exacted presumably for the information of those who were auditors. Having been given and approved, an Officer denominated the Corrector of Novices called the Chapter to prayer by sounding a bell. The Invocation which follows has, however, been mangled in translation or is represented badly by the original.¹ "Thy Name, O God our Creator, is known throughout the earth."² and we give Thee thanks in Heaven. Out of the mouth of babes Thou hast established Thy strength against Thine enemies, that Thou mightest put to silence the accuser and the avenger.³ I behold the heavens, the work of Thine hands, the moon and the stars which Thou hast made.⁴ They that have ears let them hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches : To him that overcometh I will give to eat of the Tree of Life which is in the Paradise of God.⁵ And to the Angel of the Church of Smyrna write, saying : This is the first and the last, He that was dead and shall live again.⁶ They that have ears, etc. (repeated). To him that overcometh I will give of the hidden manna, and I will give him a good testimony written in his name (sic), but none shall know it save he that owneth it.¹ For all this hath the Lord spoken, and the word of the Lord is pure, even as pure silver, purged seven times."²

The Corrector of Novices then exhorted the Candidate, bidding him pray to "the good elements of all creatures that the One and the Three and the Five and * * * * * may be with us and that they may direct thee on the path which thou hast entered." Robing and unrobing followed, with the recitation of a Psalm, which is not otherwise specified. The Candidate was then warned that he had been brought within the secret circle in order that he might study the Laws of Divine Wisdom, Justice, Mercy and Power. He was called upon to abide among his Brethren in sincerity of heart, with the spirit of goodwill and submission, with love and devotion to the true ends of the Order. In the fulfilment of these conditions it was said that he would be taught "our Mysteries" fully and would be directed to that point when he himself should enter the light. On the faith of this prospect he ratified another Pledge as follows: "I, N. N., do swear by the one law of the True and Unknown Being that I will continue through all my life in fidelity to the duties of Knights and Brothers of Light. If I violate even one of them, may my Superiors, by the miraculous power of Magic, render me the most pitiable of all creatures. May the powers of evil rise up against me for ever, the cruel spirits which hide themselves from the light. May the powerful Princes of Darkness assemble about me all terrors of darkness, to encompass me as with a cloud. May they expel all light from my spirit, my soul and my body, and may the Source of Good, which is One and Three, shut me out for ever from its mercy."¹

The Signs and Passwords are communicated in the next place, after which another Master of Novices delivers the Historical Discourse. It affirms the existence of various occult Societies from past times immemorial and under various names. In all cases their knowledge and objects were concealed in hieroglyphics, and thus reserved to the elect. The centre was always in Asia, and there on a day it came about that certain Knights were admitted who took part in the war against Saracens under the Banner of the Cross. They learned after this manner many mysteries in Asia, but the time came when part of them perished under a thousand tortures. The reference is of course to the suppression of the Knights Templar, whose story is told in brief. It is added that out of this ruin there arose what is called the Radiz, otherwise Knights of St John, as also "the German Order"—presumably Teutonic Knights—and the Golden Fleece.² The wreckage of the Templar Mysteries was inherited by these Associations. Apparently, however, they were not the only heirs, for it is said that the Order of Freemasons, more ancient than any of the above, is that which has best preserved the hieroglyphics of Templar Knights. The Temple of Solomon was their most catholic symbol of all, yet it was used by the Chivalry itself, the Sanctuary of Israel being divided apparently into symbolic portions corresponding to the Grades of the Knighthood.

² We have seen that the Order of the Golden Fleece originated in 1429 in connection with an event belonging to that date and to nothing else; the Knights of St. John were founded in 1124; and the Teutonic Knights in 1191. It follows that none of these institutions "arose" out of the suppression of the Templars in 1307.

The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross

The discourse is confused at this point and it is scarcely possible to understand what is intended. We hear of moral interpretations applied by Templars to sacraments and picture-symbols. It recurs then to Masonry and affirms without further preface that its real objects have been invariably those of Alchemy, Theosophy and Magic, but they have not been pursued owing to the ignorance of Brethren. The Fratres Lucis were, however, in a position to intervene and atone for this deficiency, by means of clear instructions, which would be given to deserving Novices.

In this manner the claim of the Order itself begins to emerge distinctly for the first time, and thereafter the Discourse proceeds to explain the Entered Apprentice Degree of Craft Masonry. The dark room used prior to reception signifies that the First Matter of the Great Work is found in a black earth. It is an earth which contains no metals, and these are removed from the Candidate prior to his reception for this reason. When he is divested of various garments the reason is that "Our Matter is stripped of the veil that Nature has given it." It is said also that it can be "drawn as from the breast of a mother." When the shoe also is removed the reference is to a certain mystical severance and is "one of the most ancient hieroglyphics known to the Israelites," being connected with the refusal to take the wife of a deceased brother, the renunciation of an inheritance, and so forth. The battery which is made upon the floor as a token of affirmation or consent to the reception of Candidates "signifies that we procure our Matter from its habitation in a volcano and that the Order has for its chief objects the physical mysteries wrought by fire." The hoodwink indicates that although the First Matter is luminous, shining and clear in itself, yet it can be found only in a most darksome abode—meaning the black earth already mentioned. The three circum-ambulations which are made in the course of reception are called "laborious journeys" and with their connected discourses and procedure are not interpreted alchemically: they signify¹ the obedience, fidelity and silence which must be shewn towards Chiefs, as well as "the toils, reflections, upright heart and open soul," by which only the Novice can hope to rise towards them. But it is obvious that this is a blundering digression which has forgotten that its business of interpretation is at work on a Craft Grade. The confusion persists throughout the following clauses. The point of the sword making contact with the breast is a reminder that "no two-edged weapon must ever be used to slay our Hiram and obtain his precious blood, which is shewn afterwards by a 'weak' Brother and his blood-stained handkerchief." It is affirmed that this unintelligible reference—which has no Masonic application in our own day—is explained to the Knight-Novice of the seventh year. The silence preserved in the Lodge intimates that "our Matter," after its due preparation, operates the dissolution of all metals in stillness. The compasses brought forward on a plate of blood and afterwards applied to the Candidate, with the subsequent elevation of the plate, intimate that "we have another poniard," being that which "we thrust into the bosom of our matter" and cause it to pour forth blood." Whatsoever is repeated thrice indicates that the Matter is animal, vegetable and mineral. Finally, the name of Thooelkam (sic), conferred on the Candidate in virtue of his admission, is another reference to the fact that "our Matter lies where the volcano has its fire and its dwelling."

The Tracing-Board offers an opportunity for further confusion between Masonic symbolism and that of the ¹ It is said alternatively that the path, according to its affirmed significance, can be found only in secrecy, after great trials, and by firm and fearless constancy.

The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross

Fratres Lucis. The four cardinal points or quarters intimate that God has endowed the Chiefs of the Order with such wisdom that they are raised above all mortality, and that to them nothing is unknown. The four principal winds, considered as symbols, offer the same lesson. When the Smaragdine Tablet testifies that "the wind bears it in its belly," the meaning is: "I carry the Matter, for it is the source and end of all things." The border and the pointing finger are said to denote "our unchangeableness," but this seems pure nonsense. The Masonic flooring reveals the well-known magic squares.

The Sign of the Hexagram appeared on the Tracing-Board and is connected with the words Aesh Mazor, whence it is said to signify the watery-flame or flaming water which belongs to the Hermetic work. The Sun and Moon typify the male and female elements, active and passive, corresponding to Jakin and Boaz. But it is affirmed that these have also their meaning in the operations of Divine Magic, to which statement is appended an unintelligible sentence, referring presumably to the Pillars of the Sephirothic Tree, the Mystery of MERCABA, being the Symbolic Chariot of Kabalism. The last episode of the Grade was a further historical recitation, dealing more especially with the Order of Fratres Lucis and including a sketch of the Theosophia, Magia and Chemia belonging to the First Degree.

It seems that according to the ridiculous nomenclature of the Rite the Mason admitted to the First Degree became a Knight-Novice of the Third Year and that having been proved as such for a period of three years he was entitled to the Second Degree, which is Knight-Novice of the Fifth Year. It is difficult to believe that such a contradictory symbolical scheme of times could have obtained in any sane Ritual, and my inference is that Mrs. Cooper-Oakley, who was always a confused writer, has mismanaged her material. The ceremonial of the Second Degree is said to be substantially the same as the first, and it comes about for this reason that she presents some selections only from certain addresses delivered in the Chapter. They would appear to be explanations of Fellow-Craft Symbolism, though this is little better than speculation in the state of the summaries given. We hear of the "entrance"—whether of the Chapter or the Candidate it is impossible to say—and that it signifies an approaching union of those principles that are separate in themselves. The letter F, placed in the centre of a Blazing Star, signifies the active principle of the Creative Elohim. There is also an allusion to "the Seven Degrees," which are not specified by name and it is impossible therefore to identify the Masonic Rite: they correspond, however, to the seven metals which have to be perfected in the Hermetic Work and to the least number of "the true Jewish name of our Matter." The following cryptic sentence is appended to this statement: "Thus Zechariah saw one stone with seven eyes and finally seven wheels, which are our last workmen, by means of whom we raise ourselves to perfection."¹ The Degrees, moreover, signify seven stars, "the power of which is explained in our Kabalistic science, for Natural Magic is very useful and indeed necessary to our Chiefs in their work."

The time of probation for the Third Degree is not specified, but its title is Knight-Novice of the Seventh Year, and it is either in analogy with the Craft Master Grade or the latter is expounded as to its inner meaning therein. (1) The Temple of Solomon is declared to be the general synthesis of the Hermetic Art. (2) It is affirmed to be clear from Ezekiel that Hiram has an universal meaning—namely, NAPHESH, URIM, THUMMIM—and also that he was slain.¹ (3) He signifies “our Matter, killed by three workmen in order that they may obtain the Word,” which Word is Jehovah, otherwise the Central Fire.² (4) He was buried and the murderers secured his caput mortuum: it is said to appear “as if the spirit were excited by rage” and that the Acacia is an illustration of the fact. (5) As to the nature of the Matter, this is shewn in the Master Grade: it comprises three kingdoms, and these are symbolised in that Grade by (a) the touchstone,³ corresponding to the mineral kingdom; (b) the “dead-head,” corresponding to the animal; and (c) by the Acacia, which represents the vegetable kingdom. (6) The Name or Symbol of Jehovah, which appears in the centre of a triangle, denotes the fulfilment of the Work, and this itself is called the Central Fire, otherwise “the greatest light.” After these explanations, however they may happen to have been communicated in the course of addresses, the Candidate is told as follows: “This Matter, Reverend Brother, is our book, which is here exhibited before thee, and after close study thou shalt find that it is adorned with all these qualities.” Mrs. Cooper-Oakley makes tiresome omissions and at points which seem to be vital, but I conceive it possible that some of them were actuated by a desire to reserve what she might regard as Masonic

¹ There is no reference to Hiram in Ezekiel, whether the king or the builder and artificer. It is impossible therefore to speculate on the meaning of this statement. Hiram the worker in brass is mentioned only in 1 Kings, vii, and 2 Chronicles iv.

² I conclude that this is an attempt to allegorise in a Hermetic sense for the purpose of saving the Masonic situation when it communicates familiar Divine Names and other formulae as great secrets protected by solemn pledges and Words or Names of power.

³ I conclude from this interpretation that German Craft Masonry must have incorporated stone-symbolism into the Third Degree; but it may be mentioned for the benefit of non-Masons that it is not to be found in any English working, wheresoever practised.

Secrets. If the Philosophical Matter of the Fratres Lucis was literally a book, it is obvious that the work was not physical—in the sense of metallic transmutation—and if the qualities which it is said to contain are a reference to the three kingdoms specified above, then the latter must be understood in an allegorical or mystical sense. One is inclined to speculate whether the Knight-Novice of the Seventh Year had the Bible held up before him and was told that this was the touchstone—otherwise a key to all things—a “dead-head” or caput mortuum in respect of the cortex or external meaning, and the Acacia or sign of life and resurrection, a gage of immortality in respect of its inner meaning. As regards the Third Degree of the Order, I may add that there is one reference to Hiram, King of Tyre, of whom it is said that according to the Chaldaean book JALXOT he gained inexhaustible riches by his wisdom and was eight hundred years old. But a time came when he thought himself equal with God, and this led to his destruction. He fashioned two “beams” by his art and raised seven heavens upon them, in which he caused an altar to be erected, after the fashion of the Altar of God. The purpose of this adventure in emblematic building does not transpire, nor why it was counted against him as an evil work; but the story says that God sent Ezekiel to pronounce judgment upon him, that he fell from the height which he had raised and was slain subsequently by men.

In the Fourth Degree the Candidate passes from Grades of supposed Knighthood into offices of priesthood, but as no one can see why his previous experiences should connect with the idea of chivalry, so now there is no reason on the surface, or perhaps beneath it, to account for him becoming a Levite. There may be, however, an explanation in the procedure which does not appear in the extracts. A Catechism contains the following unconnected and mostly inexplicable points. (1) Perfection is 1, 2, 3 and 4, but the sum of these numbers is 10, and the meaning may be that perfection is in the keeping of the whole Law: alternatively the allusion may be to the denary scale of the Sephiroth and the emblematic mystery of their ascent. (2) The Perfect Flame is that which illuminates, blazes and destroys not. (3) The word Majim must not be pronounced while proving pure stones of marble. (4) Elohim is Eli and Ki, the light without will and the light with will, otherwise colourless and coloured, will being the source of colour. (5) The serpent which flies through the air and burns is represented by the ant found within its scale—referring, I think, to some rabbinical myth. (6) Moses was forty days with Schamajim and brought back the natural laws, inscribed on a stone. Mrs. Oakley says that there are many more questions and answers, after which the officiating Brother offers the following Prayer: "I beseech Thee, O Lord, to grant me two graces, and may they abide with me through all my life. Take away my idolatry and falsehood; give me neither poverty nor riches, but only my daily bread. Vouchsafe unto me reason and wisdom, that I may learn both good and evil." It may be added that the whole Ceremony is much shorter than those of the previous Degrees. Considerable stress is laid upon the ethical side of the Candidate's life.

In the Fifth Degree and last the Levite becomes a Priest and is told that he has reached the end of the Secret Mysteries of a Royal and Sacerdotal Order. It is said also that he is approaching a barrier, through which he may pass, if God wills, being "enlightened by the light." He is caused to perform certain ceremonial acts before a Sacred Fire which has been kindled with religious observances. Thereafter the Closing is taken. After making every allowance for a piecemeal translation which may be also indifferently done, it will be seen that on the surface at least the Candidate has learned little enough throughout and that there is practically nothing in the Degrees to deserve calling Ritual. In view of the references to light Mrs. Oakley cherished an opinion that the teaching of the Fratres Lucis was designed to lead members from the darkness of sense-life into that illumination of spiritual being which is our heritage. Her opinion on any subject having debatable elements cannot be said to count, and there is nothing apparently in her original to support the view. The barrier referred to in the Ritual most probably means the guarded threshold of the Fifth Degree, or alternatively the threshold of that secret knowledge which would have been held to lie behind the whole Rite. The intimations concerning it point to a medley of doctrine in combination with a medley of occult practices. As such the Order of Fratres Lucis does not stand alone: there are other Rites in its likeness, though there is nothing to indicate that they have drawn therefrom. The characteristic, I am afraid, of all is that they lead nowhere. The highest Orders and Degrees of Masonry are shadows of things which have never passed into plenary expression, but they can open great vistas of symbolism beyond their own measures: this is the distinction between them and a thousand others which were dead before they were born, which contain nothing and impart nothing in themselves, and have no windows from which we can look beyond.

Having exhibited the general Ritual-horizon of the Fratres Lucis, I will complete the available information concerning them by reference to the same source. The Order was divided into Provinces, particulars of which are wanting. If the scheme, as it may have been, was laid out on an elaborate scale, it will be understood that most of them were in a state of potential subsistence only, awaiting a day to come when Fratres Lucis would have acquired the Masonic world. Actually or hypothetically, each Province was governed by a Head elected by the Brethren over whom he was subsequently to rule. The Chapter on such occasion was in the hands of a Provincial Administrator, who sounded a bell seven times. The process of election began, the votes were taken, the result was announced in due course and the Head-Elect was installed immediately after. Psalm ii: "Why do the heathen rage?" was recited, after which the Chancellor-Assessor and Sword-Bearer uncovered the breast and head of the elected Knight. The questions of the time were then put, namely, (1) Whether he promised to have faith in the Good Author of all creatures to the end of his life; (2) whether he would observe the Statutes of the Order and maintain the same inviolate; (3) whether he would love the Brethren more than he loved himself. When the Assembly had been satisfied on these points, the Chancellor took a golden cup containing oil and anointed the head of the Knight-Elect crosswise on the crown, saying: "God chooses thee as the Chief of His Elect." Afterwards the left hand and breast were anointed, with the words: "David said unto the Philistines,¹ etc. He was also and finally anointed on the right hand, but seemingly with no verbal formula. He was invested thereafter with the robes of his Office and with the Cap, the Chancellor saying: "He who is the Chief Priest among his Brethren, on whose head has been poured the holy chrism and whose hands have been anointed, shall be clothed with this sacerdotal garment, and let him not uncover his head or rend his robe." There were other exhortations, ending with this Prayer: "They who have ears to hear let them hear: he that overcometh shall have the first Tree of Life [sic]

in the Paradise of God. And to the Angel of the Church [sic, meaning the Church in Smyrna] he shall write: This is the First and the Last. Who shall die and live again [sic]. To him that overcometh I will give of the Hidden Manna, and I will give him a good certificate¹ [sic], and this certificate he alone that hath shall know it [sic]. The lightning shall arise from the Altar, and also the Thunder and the Voice. And seven lighted candlesticks shall be before the Altar which represent the Seven Spirits of God. May God bless thee and keep thee: may God teach thee and be gracious unto thee: may God turn His countenance and give unto thee peace therefrom.”²

As regards the Laws of the Order they may be extracted thus: (1) The Grades comprised by the Rite, as already given; (2) Regulations concerning voting, election and so forth; (3) The decorations of the Temple, in the centre of which there was to be a seven-branched candlestick of gold; (4) Offences against the Order and complaints; (5) Rules for the preservation of right and order; (6) The vestments used in the Rite, but they are omitted by the translator; (7) Concerning alms; (8) Dues payable in the Order; (9) The Chronology of the Order, and this is given as follows: The Chronology begins with the year of the reform which was inaugurated by John the Evangelist, Founder and Head of the Seven Unknown Churches of Asia, seven years after the death of Christ. By subtracting from A.D. 1781, the year in which the Order was founded, the 33 years of Christ's life on earth and the seven which elapsed before St. John began his work, making 40 years, we arrive at the symbolical or rather mythical year which was arrogated to itself by the Order, namely, 1741. Were it revived at this day on the same basis it would assume the age of 1883 years. The subsequent Laws are devoted to questions of correspondence and business details.

It remains to be said that the manuscript on which Mrs. Cooper-Oakley depended was addressed to the Seven Wise Fathers, Heads of the Seven Churches of Asia, wishing "peace in the Holy Number"—presumably the number seven. The Order comes therefore before us as that of a Hidden Church or Holy Assembly, ex hypothesi like that of Eckartshausen, but passing into substituted manifestation by virtue of its ceremonial workings. The analogy ends at this point; but the reference to the Seven Churches opens a further question. We are taken back to the Asiatic Brethren or Initiated Brothers of Asia, otherwise the Knights and Brethren of St. John the Evangelist for Asia in Europe, which claimed to possess and to propagate the only true Freemasonry. According to Findel, the system consisted of two probationary Degrees of seeking and suffering,¹ which were followed by (1) Consecrated Knight and Brother, (2) Wise Master, (3) Royal Priest or Perfect Rosicrucian, called otherwise the Degree of Melchisedek. It should be understood as regards the last that it was neither the Eighteenth Degree of the Rite of Perfection nor any variant thereof but that it drew from the Golden and Rosy Cross of circa 1777 and from Rosicrucian things antecedent thereto in Ritual, so far as served its purpose.² The proof is that the Initiated Brothers of Asia

¹ There were three, according to Mrs. Cooper-Oakley, namely, (1) Seekers, (2) Endurers, (3) Probationers, all classed under the general denomination of Sufferers. She does not cite her authority. See TAXONOMICAL REVIEW, Vol. XXIV, 1899.

² A Grade of Melchisedek connotes Eucharistic procedure and symbolism, but, according to Findel, Hans Heinrich established a Melchisedek Lodge at Hamburg into which non-Christians were admitted, as they were also in Berlin. He promised to unfold the meaning of all Masonic "hieroglyphics."

were almost beyond question a foundation of the Brothers Ecker und Eckhoffen prior to the Knights of Light. Findel seems to be the only writer who has thrown any doubt upon the point, but he has created uncertainty solely by contradicting himself. He says in one place that Baron Hans Heinrich was propagator rather than founder and that he was helped by an Israelite named Hirschmann in recasting the Rituals; but in another place we are told that because he had failed in "obedience, trust and peaceful behaviour" he had been expelled from the Rosy Cross and that in revenge he founded the Asiatic Order. It is possible that this is a correct version of the matter and it seems certain also that the only Rituals to remodel were those of the Rosy Cross.

There is no trace of the Initiated Brothers prior to 1730,¹ and by Findel's own shewing the expulsion of Hans Heinrich could not have taken place till very late in the previous year, for in 1779 he is said to have been editing for the Rosicrucians a "collection of Masonic [sic] speeches," delivered in the "ancient system," that is, prior to the Reformation of 1777. But the Fratres Lucis based their symbolic chronology, as we have seen, on 1781. It is clear therefore that they arose concurrently with the Initiated Brothers, or alternatively that they were different branches or names of one thing. In support of the latter possibility we find that the heads of the Initiated Brothers claimed to have been Directors of the Seven Invisible Churches of Asia, or in other words that they are the very persons to whom the Wilkoroki manuscript was addressed. Moreover, the chief stipulation with Candidates was the same in both cases, or "not to inquire by whom the secrets were communicated, whence they came now or might emanate in the future." Finally, the Initiated Brothers dated by their hypothesis from the year A.D. 40, when the Fratres Lucis originated under the auspices of St. John the Evangelist. There could be no two emblematical peas more like unto each other in one pod of the Mysteries. It ought not to need adding that nothing attaches to the identity or distinction between the two groups. In modern occult circles of the theosophical type a considerable rumour of importance has grown up about the Fratres Lucis, but—against all intention on her part—it has been dispersed by the publication of Mrs. Cooper-Oakley's analysis of the Warsaw document. The two Orders concern us only as derivatives of the Rosy Cross in the eighteenth century under the Masonic ægis. They are serviceable as illustrating the circumstances under which new branches of the Order or things made in its likeness came suddenly into being, making great claims on present possession of knowledge and on an immemorial past, but with very little behind them and, as it happened in both these cases, with no horizon in front. According to Clavel, the Initiated Brothers were in trouble with the police in 1785—where, however, being omitted—and in 1787 a writer named Rolig put an end to them by revealing their secrets. My experience of Secret Orders, Masonic and otherwise, shews that they do not suffer death in this manner: more often they undergo change.

¹ This is the date of organisation given by Mackey, an American historian of Masonry. He terms the Asiatic Brothers a Rosicrucian schism.

The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross

It is reported also that the Fratres Lucis were broken up in 1795, but the fact is exceedingly doubtful on other considerations than are adduced by Mrs. Cooper-Oakley. She refers to a publication entitled DER SIGNATSTERN, and terms it an official organ of the Order. It began to appear in small volumes about 1804 and continued for several years, but was not a periodical publication in numbers or in any way corresponding to Transactions. It is in reality a collection of archives, and according to these and the general title of the work there were Seven Grades of Mystical Freemasonry, otherwise of the Order of Knights of Light. I can speak with certainty only of the ninth part or division, comprised in a duodecimo volume of three hundred pages and containing (1) a long disquisition on the Mysteries of Egypt and their alleged analogies with those of Freemasonry; (2) the Constitution and Laws or Statutes of the St. John's Lodge Ferdinand zum Felsen at the Orient of Hamburg, dated in 1790 and signed by Hans Karl Freyherr von Ecker und Eckhofen; (3) a sheaf of orations emanating from the Grand Lodge Royal York of Friendship. If the archives as a whole are to be judged by these examples, they offer no evidence on the perpetuation of the Fratres Lucis. I have no doubt that the Asiatic Brethren survived the revelations of Rollig, and I should regard it as exceedingly doubtful that the concordant or identical association was actually broken up in 1795. It is probable that both lapsed gradually and that the second had passed out of sight at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

As regards the fraudulent antiquity claimed by both Orders, it is alleged concerning the Asiatic Brethren (1) that it underwent some kind of reform in 1541; (2) that it was working at Prague in 1608; (3) that it was closely connected with the Rosicrucians and had been helped by Christian Rosencreutz from time to time—a reference to its supposed activities, in the early fifteenth century; (4) that according to one of its traditions it was to continue till the Head should return—presumably C.:R.:C.:. The Jew Hirschmann is said to have supplied Kabalistic and Talmudic elements, including instructions on the four worlds of Atziluth, Briah, Yerzirah and Assiah. According to Mrs. Oakley the Fratres Lucis were incorporated originally at Berlin, but were first made public as an Order at Vienna in 1780, or immediately after the death of the Empress Maria Theresa. The evidence does not appear, and we have seen that their own chronology points to the year 1781. It appears from the Warsaw manuscript that few Rosicrucians were admitted, it being alleged that they had fallen away from their original ideal, were tainted with the thirst for gold and the search after power.

It remains to say that Hans Heinrich von Ecker und Eckhoffen—who seems to have worked always in conjunction with Karl his brother—was a gentleman of the bedchamber and counsellor of the Duke of Coburg-Saalfeld. According to his own statements, he became a Freemason in his sixteenth year and a Rosicrucian at no long date after. We have seen that he was expelled from the latter Order, or such is the recurring allegation, whatever its value.

FRATRES LUCIS

UTHENTIC information concerning the Fratres Lucis, or Brothers of Light, is extremely difficult to secure and perhaps the researches of the late Mrs. Isabel Cooper-Oakley shed as much light on the subject as may be found. She had access to many MSS. which are now hidden from view; her ritual of the Order which appeared in the THEOSOPHICAL REVIEW for 1899 is so nearly like that which is reproduced hereafter as to indicate a common origin.

Clavel gives the year 1780 as a probable date for the origin of the Fratres Lucis, but other writers had little knowledge of this Masonic Order, else they failed to produce evidence of it.

The ritual which follows was furnished to Grand College by one of our Honorary Fellows, Sydney Clifton Bingham, of Christchurch, New Zealand, who also supplied that of the Swedenborgian Rite and to him we express our appreciation for this splendid co-operation.

It might be well to state that the Fratres Lucis is not to be confused with a modern invention worked in connection with the Societas Rosicruciana in Anglia, known as the August Order of Light.

[A Note in the MS.]

The following Ritual was used in 1780 by Freemasons who collected together out of all the Rites those which had an Hermetic basis, whether in the moral or operative aspect.

Amongst these were members of the Golden Rosicrucians, Asiatic Brethren, &c.; and Pasquales, Swedenborg, Cagliostro, St. Germain, Mesmer, St. Martin, Eliphas Levi, Baron Ecker, Von Eckhoffen and Henrick his brother, and their uncle Dr. Schleiss Von Lowenfeld of Salzbach, known as Phoebron in the Rosicrucian Order. The members of the old Ritters des Licht who joined are not specified by name.

Baron Ecker is said to have been also a member of the Christian Masonry of Bohemia, 1756, altered to St. Germain's Order of Joachim, 1786. Findel states that he was a member of the Golden Rosycross before he joined the Ritters des Licht, 1767, or Asiatic Brethren, and after that the Fratres Lucis.

Some of the first named members had been Beneficent Knights of the Holy City, which sprang out of the Exacte Observance of which Baron Ragon and Professor Starck were members, and which was a schism (in 1767) from the Strict Observance or Templar Rite of Baron von Hund, derived in 1743 from the Chapter of Clermont.

This Ritual is complete in itself, but Ragon (Orthodoxie Maconnique, fo. 236) makes it the 10th Degree divided into five parts of the Exacte Observance, and the Ruling Degree of the Royal Priest of Melchisedeck of Asiatic Initiates of Europe, 1780.

The Organization, which is altogether too strict for English Freemasons, is as follows;—

1. Preceptorial Chapter of Europe (Head Assembly).
2. Provincial Chapter, with a Provincial Administrator, Assessor, Chancellor, Sword Bearer, &c.
3. Chapters known by the Fifth Degree under their Preceptors (the Rev. Wise and Worthy Brethren).
4. The Statutes of the Wise, Potent and Revd. Order of the Knights and Brothers of Light.

FRATRES LUCIS

PART ONE

To the Seven Wise Fathers, Heads of the Seven Churches of Asia ; Health, Happiness and Peace by the Holy Numbers.

As Peace, both Inward and Outward, depends in all Societies on their Outward and Inward Organization, certain Laws are necessary to effect this, and to maintain a regular activity. For this reason We (the Preceptorial Chapter) command;—

Section One

That the whole system of the Knights and Brothers of Light be divided into Five Sections and Degrees, as follows;—

1. Knight Novice of the Third Year.
2. Knight Novice of the Fifth Year.
3. Knight Novice of the Seventh Year.
4. Knight Levite.
5. Knight Priest.

Each Assembly shall be presided over by a Preceptor of Novices and termed a Chapter, adding the title of the age, as The Chapter of Knights Novices of the Third Year; and so of the others, the Chapter of Levites and finally the Chapter of Priests.

Section Two

The Perfected Chapters in Europe shall take rank according to their strength, power and date of Constitution.

In each Province the number of Novices shall not exceed those of Third Year, $5 \times 27 = 135$. Of the Fifth Year, $4 \times 27 = 108$. Of the Seventh Year, $3 \times 27 = 81$. Of Knight Levites, $2 \times 27 = 54$, and of the Priests 27 only.

Each Chapter shall consist of 19 Active Members; and promising Novices of the Third Year, whilst awaiting a vacancy, shall study only the theory of Physics.

All Chapters and All Provincial Chapters shall be governed by the Preceptorial Chapter of Europe.

Section Three

1. It is ordered that, at the Election of Officers, no Novice whether of the Third, Fifth or Seventh Year can hold a seat or have a vote upon any matter.

2. No Levite by himself alone can hold a sitting or vote, but when assembled together each has one vote.

3. Every Priest may hold a seat and have a vote in the Chapter in which he happens to be, whether that of Novices, Levites or his own.

Section Four

1. The building in which the Knights and Brethren assemble must be sufficiently spacious and isolated and suitable for the business; i.e., it shall have at least four chambers of which the first serves as an ante-chamber.

2. The walls shall be hung with red stuff, having a green stripe at the edges; On each wall shall be seven lustres with three lights each.

3. In the middle of the Hall shall be a candelabrum with seven golden candlesticks.

4. The Altar shall be approached by Steps of the Mystic Number. It is curtained off and made to represent the Holy of Holies.

THE ELECTION.

1. Election shall take place not later than seven o'clock.

2. The Novices remain in the Outer Chamber, but are armed with drawn swords and act as Guards.

3. The Chapter is opened in Due Form.

4. The Provincial Administrator, presiding, rings the bell seven times and thus addresses the Chapter;—

Our Assembly, Revd. and Mighty Brethren, has for its cause a serious matter, which has already been explained to you.

Your choice is to fill the post with a Potent and Revd. Brother who may, as head of our Province, take right good care of it, and of the whole of our Sublime Order in general. Try so to make this choice that you may fearlessly give account of it to the Supreme and Infinite Being.

The votes are now taken in a dignified manner and the newly Elected Brother is led to the Altar to be installed.

Chancellor reads Psalm 2, "Why do the heathen rage", &c., through down to the end, "Trust in Him."

The Knight Chancellor, Assessor and Sword Bearer then uncover the Chest and Head of the new Elect. Other appropriate Ritual is introduced and the Provincial Administrator addresses him thus;—

Q. Revd. Brother, dost thou promise to believe to the end of thy life in the good Author of all Creatures?

A. I promise.

Q. Revd. Brother, dost thou promise to observe duly the statutes of the Orders of Knights and Brothers of Light, and never to try to diminish or change them, and in accordance with these laws to leave to each one his rights and never forsake them?

A. I promise.

Q. Revd. Brother, dost thou promise to love the Knights and Brothers of Light and all fellow members even as thyself, and to render to everyone such service as may be expected from thee?

A. I promise.

Having accepted these Vows, the Chancellor takes up the Golden Cup in which the Priest's Oil is kept and anoints the Crown of the Head of the Elect, in the pattern of two pieces of a tree bent in the shape of a Cross, saying;—

(Chancellor) God elects you as the Chief of the Elect.

He then anoints Left Hand, Heart and Right Hand, saying;—

David said to the Philistine, thou dost threaten me with thy sword, thy spear and shield, but I draw near to thee in the Name of the Lord, the God of Israel whom thou hast defied.

Chancellor then places Cap on the Head of the Elect and Robes him, saying;—

He who is the Chief Priest amongst his Brothers on whose Head has been poured the Holy Chrism and whose Hand has been touched should be clothed with the Sacerdotal Robe, and let him not uncover his head nor rend his robe.

The Newly Installed is then suitably extolled upon the grave responsibilities of his office and the following Invocation given;— (Rev. ii, 7, 8 & 17; iv, 5.)

“He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the Tree of Life, which is in the midst of the Paradise of God. And unto the angel of the church in Smyrna write; these things saith the first and the last, which was dead and is alive. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; to him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it. And out of the Throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices: and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God.” And may God bless you and keep you, may God instruct you and be gracious unto you, may God turn his countenance upon you and give you peace.

Section One

FIRST DEGREE

KNIGHT NOVICE OF THIRD YEAR RECEPTION

1. The Knight Novice must be a legal Freemason.
2. He must be without moral or physical defect.
3. He must belong to no secret society opposed to us.
4. He must be 27 years old and 7 years a Freemason.

5. He must be a friend to the poor and no persecutor.
6. He must not be disputatious or quarrelsome.

Section Two

Of the Chevalier and Ceremony of Reception

7. He is led into separate room and met by Introducer.
8. He has three Admonishments to him to turn back.
9. If he does not cease to entreat, put on Masonic dress.
10. He is asked his age and how long a Freemason.
11. In what Lodge admitted.
12. Is requested to give Sign of the Degree, and then prepared.
13. He is led forward into Chamber of Reception and placed at end of table.
14. Secretary orders him to give Sign of Master.
15. Chapter gives assent by bending the head.
16. Secretary now explains;—This worthy Master Mason claims to be admitted into the Chapter of Knights of the Third Year and Brothers of Light who are responsible for him; he is therefore accepted by the choice of the Province, therefore let him be called upon to sign an Obligation.
17. 1, A. B. . . . , A Master Mason, do sincerely promise before God and as an honest man, that I will conform myself to all the mysteries and all the articles that shall be read to me by the Revd. Wise and Worthy Chapter of the Knights and Brothers of Light and Novices of the Third Year, even if they shall seem to be unheard of and troublesome to follow, and that I will regard them as the revelation of the Ultimate Forces of Nature.
18. When the Obligation has to be taken, the following is read;—The general articles on the duties of the Very Revd. and M. W. Seven Fathers, the Heads of the Seven Churches of Asia.
1. The Mason who wishes to be received as a Knight and Brother of Light as a Novice of the Third Year, must promise to attempt nothing generally or singularly, under any pretext, against all or any who are or who may be in future members of the Sublime Order of the Very Revd. Potent and Wise Knights and Brothers of Light, or against any of the Degrees where-with he may be connected in the different Chapters; nor attempt anything against the Community, but on the contrary he will, as far as in him lies, dispel and divert every danger and injustice.

2. He must promise complete submission and obedience to the Laws of the Order.

3. Since all mysteries of this Sublime Order are derived from the True Light, he must promise to follow them to his life's end, and neither asking by whom they were given nor from whence taken or may be taken. "Whoso seeth the Light clearly must be indifferent as to its source." The history of all times will more than justify this necessity.

4. He must promise to protect as far as possible the Third Degree of Freemasonry as the Elementary School of our Sublime Order and render every service which he can to its enlargement.

5. He must promise to protect the Revd., Potent and Wise Order of Knights and Brothers of Light with all his power, to contribute in an honest and active way to its enlargement, to defend its members in true, sincere and fraternal love, to help them, to recognize their claims, and to love each severely and in all sincerity with such a love as all Nature implants in brothers for each other.

6. Q. Do you sincerely promise to conform to the Rules?

A. I promise it.

A Hymn Is Sung

Procession Is Formed and All Enter Chapter Room

Preceptor of Novices questions Candidate on various points;—His Name? Birthplace? When born? Age? Where wert thou initiated into Freemasonry? What Master admitted thee?

When didst thou become a Master Mason? Who received thee a Master Mason? How long hast thou been a Free Mason? How long hast thou been a Master?

When all these Questions have been answered and entered in the Register, and it has been notified that the Novice has been Seven Years a Mason, the document is read over by the Secretary.

For a time a Solemn Silence reigns in the Chapter.

Revd. Preceptor of Novices rings Bell 3 times repeated 3 times, then reads Psalm 8, v. 3, also Revelations 2, vs. 7-8; then says;—Pray, my Brother, that the Grand Elements of all Creation, the 1, 3, 5 & 7 may be with us that they may lead thee on the Path thou are entering.

(Novice is now divested of Master Mason's apron and is clothed with that of the First Degree of Brother of Light.)

A Psalm Is Read

Preceptor of Novices. Thou hast been brought hither, my son, in order to study the Laws of God's Eternal Wisdom, His Justice, His Mercy and His Omnipotence. Our desire is that thou come amongst us with a pure heart, in a spirit of good will, of obedience, submission, and with ardor and love to study the True Wisdom. If, my son, thou givest thyself with good will and with sincere heart to embrace the pure Light, we will freely teach thee our mysteries with a light sincerity of heart and still greater desire, and by gradual steps according to thy strength of mind we will lead thee to where thou canst thyself enter into Light. (A pause.)

Now, my dear Brother, to aid the beginning of our trust in thee, give us a final token of obedience. Pronounce the Oath which I now require of thee; the Infinite Justice will judge of the quality of mind and will reward or punish thee accordingly.

The Curtain or Veil of the Holy of Holies Is Raised

Preceptor of Novices. Pray to God in your heart that He may bless the Oath of the Brother Novice, in his heart, who hath just entered himself.

Obligation

I, A. B. . . . , swear by the only Law of the True and Unknown Being, that I will continue faithful all my life to the duties of a Knight and Brother of Light. If I violate a single one of them, may my Superiors, by the miraculous powers of magic, make me the most pitiable of creatures; may the powers of evil rise up against me for ever;—those cruel spirits which hide themselves from the Light; may the Mighty Princes of Darkness assemble all the terrors of night around me like a dark cloud, and withdraw all the Light from my Spirit, from my Soul and from my Body, and may the Spirit of Good, which is One in Three, shut me out for ever from mercy.

(He is then entrusted with the S. T. & W.)

Second Master of Novices. From remote times, my Brother Knight Novice, there have been certain persons, united in mysterious and indissoluble bonds, who have endeavoured by uniting their power to probe the occult forces of Being and to prove them. Such societies have gone under many and varied names. They have hidden their Science, Studies and Mysteries in hieroglyphics which none could understand except their Disciples; they acted thus with great prudence, in order to increase the sanctity and make them less common, and in truth it would be dangerous to the world to make known powers which the welfare of the world requires should be kept secret. These various societies were seated at this or that place according to their leaders, but their center was always in Asia.

Some of the Knights who took part in the wars against the Saracens were initiated by these societies, and from all sorts of error come hatred, jealousy, persecution, greed, calumny, false witness, and lastly, death; so a portion of this Society that has learned many occult Mysteries in Asia, perished by a thousand tortures, in bloody ruin, to the great disgrace of humanity.

Three wicked men made among themselves an inhuman compact, and carried it into execution. In political history they are known as Clement V., Pope of Rome; Philip le Bel, King of France, and Nogaret, his Chancellor. These men were distinguished by a thousand atrocities and crimes, especially against an unfortunate society known by the name of Knights of the Temple. A few of them escaped from the hands of the executioners and from the tortures intended for them, by leaving for Asia. From the ruins of this Order arose the Knights of St. John, the Teutonic Order and the Golden Fleece, who all shared in what was known of the Mysteries of the Knights of the Temple, as far as the means were left for attaining them. But more ancient than these is the Society of Freemasons, a body which, though remodelled and new in many respects, has yet preserved the hieroglyphics and ideographs of the Templars, which the others changed by a hundred absurd ceremonies. As the Temple of Solomon is looked upon as the greatest miracle of the Human Power and Wisdom of that day, it appeared to the Brothers as the grandest of hieroglyphics; a fact the more agreeable to them, as they had found amongst the ancient records which the Templars had collected with great pains in various places, that these Knights had similarly used it, and that they also had divided the Temple of Solomon into hieroglyphics, to which they gave a moral interpretation as they did also to the Sacraments.

The chief objects, my Worthy Brother, which on the one hand were ill understood by the Freemasons, but which, on the other hand, they were always seeking, were Alchemy, Theosophy and Magic.

Their searches were always in vain, for if not totally ignorant of these lofty sciences, they knew but little of them.

Our duty now, Worthy Brother, is to instruct thee in all matters, so far as thou shalt deserve, and this clearly and distinctly, in order that thy Reason may be thoroughly enlightened; hence we will give thee a true explanation of the First Degree of Freemasonry, that of Disciple;—

1. Before receiving thee into the Order they took thee into a darkened room, this teaches thee that our Matter is found in a black state—our Earth.

2. We also took away all the Metals thou hadst upon thee; this shows that our Matter is not found where Metals grow.

3. They tookest away thy clothing; it shows that our Matter is stripped of the Veil with which Nature has clothed it, for it can be drawn as from the breast of a Mother.

4. They removed thy shoe, and uncovered thy left arm; this removal and uncovering, though it may relate to another branch of the meaning, in the removal of the shoe signifies the mysterious severance, and is one of the most ancient hieroglyphics known to the Israelites. When one of them desired to accuse the wife of his deceased brother, he took off his shoe; in like manner when one renounced an inheritance, or a ploughed field which he had bought, he did the same thing. But this sign of renunciation has always a mysterious signification.

5. Thine eyes were blindfolded; which teaches that though our Matter is luminous, and in itself shining and clear, yet that it is only to be found in the darkest dwelling.

6. A. C. T. was round thy neck, by which the body was led; it teaches, (Hosea, Chapter 11, verse 4.), and also the drawing of our Matter.

7. The noise that was made on the floor in sign of affirmation and consent to the reception of the Candidate signifies that we procure our Matter from its dwelling in the volcano, and that our Order has for its chief object the Physical Mysteries wrought by Fire.

8. The Three laborious Journeys made by thee, the discourse with the W. M., and the other ceremonies connected therewith, signify the Obedience, Fidelity and Silence necessary towards thy Chiefs. They also teach thee that great pains, application, reflection, an upright heart and an open soul are needed to enable thee to raise thy soul up to us; and finally it shows thee that the Path can only be found in Silence and Secrecy, that great trials have to be surmounted and firm and fearless constancy shown before we can attain thereto.

9. The point of a P. was applied to thy breast to warn thee to beware of it. It should remind thee that no double edged weapon must ever be used to slay our Hiram and procure his precious blood, which is shown afterwards by a feeble Brother and his bloody handkerchief, as is explained to a Knight Novice of the Seventh Year.

10. The inner Silence signifies that our Matter, when it is prepared, dissolves all Metals noiselessly.

11. In touching thee with the Compasses (held over a plate with blood thereon), the plate of blood held up, signifies that we have another P. beside the one that was shown to thee, and which we thrust into the bosom of our Matter until it pours forth blood.

12. The order which the W. M. gives to take care of the sick is the same as the Master gives in our Workshop,—not to injure the body. The Knight Novice of the Seventh Year receives a fuller explanation.

13. All that which is repeated to thee three times, signifies that our Matter is Animal, Vegetable and Mineral, as the Brethren of Novice of Seven Years know.

14. The name of Tubal Cain was given to thee, to show that our Matter lies where the volcano has its fire and its dwelling place.

15. Thy Insignia, the administration of an Oath, and the religious equalities in the , relate to our Theosophical and political statutes, which thou wilt know when attaining our Fifth Degree.

16. And finally, thou hast been asked to say, as far as thou couldst remember them, thy name, birthplace, &c. This is useful to our Chiefs from their Kabalistic knowledge, to guide them in tracing the most secret windings of thy heart and character.

Explanation of Floor Cloth

1. The Four Corners represent the Four Quarters of the Globe, and point out that God has given to our Chiefs such wisdom that, by this privilege, they are raised above all other mortals from East to West and from South to North, so that, for them, it matters not what lies outside the entire system, for there is nothing unknown to them. They hold the same relation to the Four Principal Winds of which our Father Hermes speaks—The Wind bears it in its bosom—that is to say, they bear the Matter, for it is the source and end of all things.

2. The Border and Fringe denote our unchangeableness.

3. The Mosaic Pavement shows to the Chiefs the wellknown Magic Squares.

4. The is the Aesh Major or the Watery Flame, or Flaming Water, which we can procure for ourselves.

5. The Sun and Moon denote the Masculine and Feminine Elements, or that which is Active and that which is Passive. The same thing is signified by the Two Pillars J and B, which however, have their signification in divine measure, for they are the Pillars of the Ten Sephiroth and of the Sacred Divine Chariot.

(After this, the Theosophical and Divine Science, and the Chemical Work of the Degree are given in due order, and the Chapter then closed.)

Note. There is supposed to be Three Years between this Degree and the Next; which time the Novice gives to the Practical and Operative study of Science.

SECOND DEGREE

Knight Novice of the Fifth Year

Introductory Part is similar to that of FIRST DEGREE. Candidate is questioned upon the progress he has made in the Sciences, after the manner of the Hermetic Degrees of other Rites. Only One Demand is made as to Reception.

Secretary;—Presents him in his rank.

Preceptor of Novices. (Addressing Candidate.)

1. In former times it was the duty of the Workmen to dip our Matter out of the Earth, and in fact, the Workmen of old performed this task for the Adepts, until it was found that the knowledge thus acquired led to frequent abuses, so that it was made the duty of the Masters in Freemasonry themselves, as is explained to the Knight Novice of Seven Years.

2. By the manner of Entrance in this Degree is signified the approaching Union of the Three Principles, but which we separate in themselves. The other preparation which thou didst undergo was made so light, because there was nothing new to teach thee; and they were therefore but a repetition of what thou hast learnt in thy pupil's Degree. So also in of the workmen, these doctrines only will be repeated which are somewhat known to the pupil.

3. The letter F in a Blazing Star (Force and Strength) signifies the active principle of the Creative Elohim, which is clearly explained in our Theosophy, as known to the Brothers of Light alone; and from which follows the reason why a Freemason adds to his name or signature a Square containing a Central Point.

4. The Seven Degrees signify the Seven Metals which have to be perfected by our Work. They also signify the smallest number of the true Hebrew name of our Matter. Thus Zachariah saw a Stone which had upon it Seven Eyes, and after it Seven Wheels, which represent our last Workmen by which we rise to perfection. Finally, they signify Seven Stars, the power of which is found explained in our Kabalistical Science, for Natural Magic is useful, and very necessary to our Chiefs in the Work.

THIRD DEGREE

Knight Novice of the Seventh Year

Candidate is Received in a manner similar to that of the previous Degrees.

Preceptor. The Temple of Solomon, Revd. Brother, was in a general way the synthesis of our Art, and it moreover included the symbolism of all the Mysteries—Theosophical, Magical, Alchemical—and was in the time of Solomon an allegory of our Order (Kabalistically) which replaced or superceded the hieroglyphical symbolism of the Egyptians, which, with the exception of a few, are not used in our Order. But as it was necessary to have some subject of study in the present Three Degrees of Masonry, an allegorical account was introduced of the history of Hiram, King of Tyre, who had assisted King Solomon in the building of the Temple, and from this account some doctrines of importance may be adduced; so we must at once teach that the true origin of this legend, and then the true sense of the allegory which arises out of it. In the book of the Prophet Ezekiel one may see more clearly that "Hiram" had a universal meaning—Nephesh Urim Thummim (Soul, Light, Truth) (Truth or Perfection) and that he did not die of illness but was killed. In the Chaldean book Jalkot the following is related of this King, which is considered a clear and historical explanation of the denunciation made in Ezekiel 28. "Hiram, King of Tyre who had assisted Solomon in the building of the Temple, had, by his wisdom, gained immense riches and reached the age of 800 years. He afterwards grew proud of his wisdom and thought himself equal with God; he fashioned by his art two beings (Pillars) and built upon them

Or lest we be poor and steal and take the Name of our God in vain. (Proverbs xxx, 8-9.)

There is no symbolic instruction, but an Address which lays great stress on Ethics.

OPENING—The Hour when we come to Sacrifice.

CLOSING—The Hour when Sacrifice is Consummated.

FIFTH DEGREE

Knight Priest

OPENING—First Hour of the Day.

Neophytes introduced, and after some preliminary Questions they are informed that the Rank they seek entitles them to fill the highest offices of the Order, and that they have in their care the Statutes of the Order which were given them previously.

The Preceptor of Levites, or Provincial Administrator, says;—

"Now, Revd. Brothers, ye are nearing the last of the explanations we have to give you before taking the Oath. You draw near to the last barrier, which ye, yourselves, will have to pass, if God permits ye to be enlightened by His Light. Now ye have reached the end of the Secret Mysteries of our Royal and Priestly Order. These, as well as those which may hereafter be given ye, are of such a nature that only in the Light can they be sought and found.

They take the Oath, and Invested and Entrusted. The Sacred Fire is lighted at which the Priests officiate and are anointed and robed.

Provincial Administrator. I anoint thy right ear, thy right eye and thy right thumb with the Holy Oil, in token of thy separation from the follies of the world and to set thee apart from them amongst the well-doers to be raised at the last day as a Monument of God's glory.

Thou art a Priest forever after the Order of Melchizedeck.

CLOSING.

Last hour of Life and Safety.
